

Feng Shui: Five Concepts

Qi, form, direction, time, balance.

Feng Shui in Five Concepts

- Qi (氣) — the flow being read. Stagnant = bad, rushing = bad.
- Form (形) — mountains, water, roads as seen shapes.
- Direction (向) — the facing of a building; paired with sitting (坐).
- Time (時) — flying stars change yearly; space + time together.
- Balance — yin-yang and five elements applied to rooms, not just charts.

Honest note: classical texts disagree on schools (Form vs Compass). Anyone selling one “true” method is selling, not teaching.
